Dear Students,

The Faculty of Asian and Middle Eastern Studies library guide for new undergraduates is available at <https://www.ames.cam.ac.uk/undergraduates/undergraduate-resource/induction-information-2019-20/information-first-year-part-ia>

Please may I remind you:

There is general induction material for your language(s) available by using the links at <https://www.ames.cam.ac.uk/undergraduates/undergraduate-resource/induction-information-2019-20>
The programme for the induction sessions on Wednesday 9 October 2019 is available at <https://www.ames.cam.ac.uk/undergraduates/undergraduate-resource/induction-information-2019-20/useful-information-all-students>. Please do check the programme just before the start of term as there might be some last minute changes.
The undergraduate welcome party will be held on Tuesday 8 October 2019 from 4pm to 5pm in the Common Room at the Faculty. Thank you to everyone who has already said they will be coming to the party.

For your information, the undergraduate student handbook for 2019-20 is available at https://www.ames.cam.ac.uk/files/UG\_student\_handbook.pdf. This document will be updated throughout the academic year, so please check online for the latest version.

We look forward to meeting you soon. In the meantime if you need any further information please do contact me.

Kind regards,

Francesca

Dear Students,

For your information before you arrive in Cambridge there is a general resource about how to find the information you will need for your studies and how you will find, evaluate, manage and use this information at <https://camguides.lib.cam.ac.uk/>

Please note this resource is intended for all students regardless of discipline or college. Looking at the resource is not compulsory and you don't have to follow it through prescriptively.

You will receive more details and subject specific information during your course.

Kind regards,

Francesca
