Jennifer Guest is Associate Professor of Classical Japanese at the University of Oxford and Fellow in Japanese at The Queen’s College. Her research interests include the reception of Chinese texts and knowledge in early to medieval Japan, as well as comparative perspectives on literary education, manuscript culture, and the transmission of classical languages. She is at work on a monograph based on her doctoral thesis (Columbia University, 2013), which examined the textual dimensions of Heian and medieval education in kanbun (“Chinese-style” texts), including primers, commentaries, and their creative literary adaptations.

Cultures of literacy in Sei Shōnagon’s Pillow Book: Laughter and Chinese-style learning in the medieval Japanese court
Faculty of Asian and Middle Eastern Studies
Monday, 27th October, 2014
17:00, Rooms 8 & 9

Funding for the Japan seminars in the series has been generously provided by the Great Britain Sasakawa Foundation